Remember Miss Davisson.

Among the many pleasing mementos received by Miss Belle Davisson, of West Main street, on Wednesday, her birthday, which placed her on the list of monogamians, was a beautiful selection of flowers contributed by a few of her "old boy" scholars as a token of her residence, now occupied by Dr. and still held by them. At least one of these scholars attended her school as far back as 1859 and another in 1862, when she taught in the little frame building on Second street, in the rear of her residence, now occupied by Dr. Peck as an office. In this building she taught many pupils, some of whom have long been grandparents. Those who contributed the flowers sincerely trust that her life may be many years prolonged that they may have the pleasure of manifesting, on each of her future birthdays, their deep gratitude to her for the beneficial instruction she imported to them in their boyhood, now far back in the distant past.

Homecoming Function Planned.
Arrangements were made for a homecoming event in honor of the local Red Cross nurses, Misses Mayme Gorman and Nelle Manning, on their return from European battlefields, at a well attended and interesting meeting of the Harrison County Graduate Nurses' Association Tuesday afternoon at St. Mary's hospital. An entertainment committee, consisting of Misses Margaret Thomas, Nellie Selby, Elise Rodwald, Rose Cunningham and Theresa Flynn was appointed to make the arrangement for the affair.

The meeting was featured with the attendance of Miss Emma Vernon, superintendent of the Mary's school hospital at Afrimont and Miss K. B. G. Flynn, of Grant Town, who has been sent from New York City to do social service work for the Federal Coal Company. She gave an interesting talk on her work. Reports were read from the American Nurses' Association, the West Virginia State Nurses' Association and the West Virginia Federation of Women's Kennedy. In the absence of Miss Lulu Kennedy, Miss Theresa Flynn was appointed to act as secretary pro tem.

Large Card Party.
Mrs. Emil J. Francois and Mrs. Earl L. Spraker, were joint hostesses at a large and handsomely appointed card party, held in the auditorium of the Elks home, from 3 to 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. Thomas Sullivan and Mrs. James Gorman, of Kokomo, Ind., who are guests of Mrs. Francois.

Brilliant autumnal shades were used in charming harmony in the elaborate floral decorations of the assembly room.

Tall, stately palms and ferns with groupings of potted plants were banked in hedge effect on the stage, augmented with long-stemmed chrysanthemums and with the window shelves artistically festooned with vines of asparagus and similar, richly studded with clusters of bright-colored chrysanthemums, formed a brilliant setting for the smart and handsome gowns worn by the many women and girls participating in the pastime of progressive euchre.

Delicious refreshments were served at small tables and long-stemmed chrysanthemums were used as favors and placed at the cover of each guest.

Mrs. Francois and Mrs. Spraker were assisted by Mrs. John Francois, Mrs. John Jacobs, Mrs. J. M. Lynch, Mrs. John O'Bannet and Mrs. J. M. Francois. The guest list included nearly ninety guests.

The CURRENT MAGAZINES

A new serial, "A Burglar of Hearts," by Mary Carolyn Davies, is started in the December number of the Designer. It is a tale of social and romantic adventure in New York. Another interesting action offering is "A Christmas Dream Comes True" by Lillian Lucey. The question of letting children have war toys is discussed and con by Lindley M. Garrison, secretary of war, and Fannie Fern Andrews, organizer of the School Peace League. "What Keeps Women So Young" is a deliciously humorous and witty sketch by Mrs. John Lane. Special articles are devoted to supper parties, a Japanese room, simply made Christmas gifts, cakes, Christmas decorations, babyland, healthy skin, crochets and cut work embroidery, while the usual elaborate attention is given to fashions, there being many fashion plates, some in colors, with detailed descriptions.

The box office value of two kinds of herosine is discussed in an interesting article, "What's the Use of Being Good?" by Anna Steese Richardson in the December number of McClure's Magazine. "Lord John in New York" is a short novel of love and mystery complete in this number by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. George Kibbs Turner has a short story entitled "The Little Finger of the Colberts." Cleveland Moffett continues his thrilling war perspective, "Saving the Nation." "In the Gray Land of Drugs" is the confession of a sojourner as rewritten by Kate Jordan. David Douglas tells how Julius Caesar put one over on the major for the colonial sake in "Casey Makes a Governor." Dana Gatlin contributes a fine short story called "Woman Stuff." Editorials by world prominent figures are continued as a feature, further installments of Jeffrey Farrel's "Belton" and Cameron Mackenzie's "Mr. and Mrs. Pierce" are included and there is a special article on pure foods by Mabel Dulon Parry.

"The Prolongation of Life" is the subject of an entertaining article written for the Youth's Companion by Tupert Blue, M. D., Ph. D., surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service. He discusses the causes of old age and how life may be lengthened.

"Have you caught the Christmas spirit yet? Then begin early with the right sort so that it will last you the whole year through. In a splendid editorial in the December number of the Woman's World Dr. Frank Crane discusses it and tells of a new kind of Christmas gift, and the best part of it is, it is something everyone can give. "Going Home" is a little poem; not in verse form, however, by Dorothy Whitney; the title speaks for it. Grace MacGowan Cooke begins a delightful new serial, "The Heart of Orel," a story with charming southern characters and setting. If you have enjoyed "Mandy Higgins of Benson Hollow," you will want to read of her latest achievement, "Benson Hollow's Day" by Nina Sutherland Purdy. Another one of Alma Martin Estabrook's gripping tales of the western desert is called "Drought and the Rain." There is a direct appeal to the people of the small towns and to those who have left them for the city in "Mande Radford Warren's Little Love Story, "The Treasure Inside the Door." This is an entertaining and delightful set of stories as you will see anywhere.

after the meeting. The entire body marched to the Chrystal restaurant, where a banquet took place.

The Hon. Patrick H. Shields, one of the oldest Maccabees in West Virginia acted as toastmaster. A number of interesting and usual after dinner speeches were made. The feature of the banquet was the presence of C. C. Showater, of Parkersburg, state commander of the Maccabees.

Mr. Showater had just arrived from McWhorter, where a new tent was instituted Friday. Tuesday night a crowd of Clarksburg "Bees" are going to Wilsonburg, where a class of candidates will be initiated.

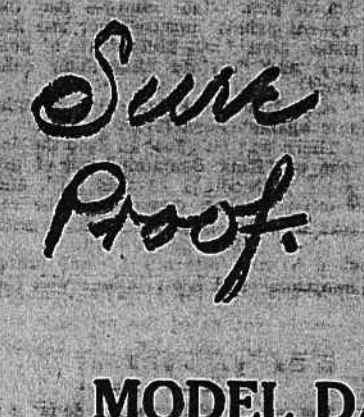

Pythian Request.

All members of Clarksburg Lodge, No. 39, Knights of Pythias, and candidates elected to join the Rathbone Bible class Monday are requested to meet at the Masonic auditorium as soon after 7 p. m.
